

Primary Category Project

Background

Many publishers use categories as a means to logically organize their content. However, many pieces of content have more than one category. Sometimes it's useful to designate a primary category for posts (and custom post types). On the front-end, we need the ability to query for posts (and custom post types) based on their primary categories.

Your Mission

Create a WordPress plugin that allows publishers to designate a primary category for posts. We've intentionally left implementation details out so you have a chance to show us strategic thinking. The code you write should be secure and performant. When you're done, send us the code as an archive or a link to a repository.

Time Tracking

Please track your time so we have an accurate understanding of how long it took you to complete the project.
